THE COMING MILL.

The approach of the heavyweight championship battle between James J. Jeffries and Jim Corbett has again brought up the question as to whether there is a man who can down the champion. All of the prominent heavypion. All of the prominent heavy-weights have had a crack at the big boilermaker and they have one after the other gone down before the heavy wal-lops of this huge giant from the west. Ever since Jeffries won the champion-ship from Bob Fitzsimmons at Coney Island followers of pugilism have been trying to figure out what kind of an individual would succeed in dethron-ging the champion. Since that memora-ble battle Jeffries has met all comers. ble battle Jeffries has met all comers, but none was successful in wresting from him the coveted title. Among Jeffries' victims—that is, aspirants who have tried and failed — are Bob Fitzsimmons, Jim Corbett, Tom Sharkey and Gus Ruhlin. Those named have tried various punches without effect. Jeffries' vulnerable point is his stomach. No one has ever been able to reach it with sufficient force to stagger the big champion. No one dare run into Jeffries' extended left, for the slightest jolt, with the power of a massive frame behind it, makes it a source of constant. Jeffries has an excellent defense in his extended left and his peculiar crouching pose. Fitzsimmons failed twice in his effort against the champion, and now Corbett is to have his second chance with his conqueror. Fitzsimmons changed his tactics very little from the first time he met Jeffries and the sec-ond time. In his first bout he was after Jeffries all the time, continually running into the champion's stiff left, which fi-nally sent him to the floor in a heap. Fitzsimmons was the aggressor again in their return match. He landed repeatedly on the champion's jaw and seemed to be having the best of the argument when Jeffries got busy and put his man

What tactics will Corbett use? is the interesting question sporting men are asking. In his last battle Corbett played a clever game. His only object appeared to be to stay the limit, and he almost succeeded, fighting 23 rounds before he was knocked out. Since that contest Corbett has been working hard. He has given up all his time to a systematic course of training which he and his out injury. There was no insurance on

> TROUBLE AT EAST ST. LOUIS .-Shortly before midnight Saturday a riot TT 00 occurred in the extreme eastern part of East St. Louis, resulting in the killing of Clifford Stanley, of St. Louis, a member of the naval reserves, and the arrest of John S. Bratton, well known as a standard of the known with the the known breeder of fine horses. Word was re-ceived in East St. Louis that a gang was cutting the levee at Winstanley Park, near the Bratton stock farm, in the extreme eastern portion of the city. A crowd rushed to the scene, and a riot followed, which resulted in a company of naval reserves being hurried to the spot. More than 100 shots were fired, and after quiet had been restored it was found that Clifford Stanley, a member of the naval reserves, had been killed. The trouble is said to have resulted from an attempt to cut the levee to let the water out of Bratton's stock farms. Bratton was taken into custody and hurried away, as threats were made to lynch him. He is a wealthy man, and is well known throughout the country as a turf-man and breeder of fine horses. It is not known that the levee was cut upon

His Last Hope Realized.

[From the Sentinel, Gebo, Mont.] In the first opening of Oklahoma to settlers in 1889, the editor of was among the many seekers after fortune who made the big race one fine day in April. During his traveling about and afterwards his camping upon water, which, together with the severe heat, gave him a very severe diarrhoea which it seemed almost impossible to check, and along in June the case became so bad he expected to die. One day one of his neighbors brought him one small bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy as a last hope. A big dose was given him while he was rolling about on the ground in great agony, and in a few minutes the lose was repeated. The good effect of the medicine was soon noticed and within an hour the patient was taking his first sound sleep for a fortnight. That one little bottle worked a complete cure, and he cannot help but feel grateful. The season for bowel disorders being at hand suggests this item. For sale by Richard Gibson.

A. H. Sayce, LL.D., D.D., of Oxford University, England, has recently said of it: It is indeed a marvelous work; it is difficult to conceive of a dictionary more chanstive and complete. Everything is in it—not only what we might expect to find in such a work, but also what few of ms would over have thought of looking for.

A supplement to the new edition has brought it fully up to date. I have been looking through the latter with a feeling of astonishment at its completeness, and the amount of labor that has been put
